

LONG EXPECTED GERMAN OFFENSIVE RESUMED ON WESTERN BATTLE FRONT

AFTER FOUR WEEKS' DELAY HUNS HAVE OPENED ANOTHER LARGE DRIVE WITH HOPES OF REACHING PARIS.

ALLIES ARE PREPARED

Are Attacking in the South Between Rheims and Soissons and in Flanders Near the Lys Salient.

Germany has resumed her drive for a decision on the western front after a lapse of nearly four weeks, striking in the south between Rheims, Soissons and in Flanders on the northerly side of the Lys salient. The effort apparently is to push simultaneously through to the channel ports in the north and to strike for Paris in the south in an effort aimed mainly at the French.

Washington, May 27.—Reports from Paris and London were watched closely today by army officials for indications of the extent and object of German attack. Early reports were meager to disclose whether the operation constituted a resumption of the German drive at Amiens or the Lys salient.

The fact that the Germans were striking simultaneously at the extreme flanks of the whole battle front of the drive created the impression that these might both be governing movements designed to mask later direct assaults on the Amiens front. The front of attack indicated in the Paris advance from Pinon to Rheims is an extension of the battle-front already more than 100 miles across in a straight line of the Pinon to Ypres and the fighting line is probably double that distance.

Two theories that might lie behind today's attack suggest themselves to officials here. The first is that the drive is intended as an effort to undermine the French line on the southern flank of the old battle front. The French position here has been regarded as offering great opportunity for flank attacks on the German forces thrusting at Amiens as it stands a most parallel to the German line of advance on Amiens. The second theory is that the drive is intended as an effort to break through south of the French flanking line, forcing a withdrawal of this line and behind which a bulk of the French army is supposed to be massed.

Attack Both Ends. On the other hand, heavy attack at both ends of the long battle front may be intended to draw French and British reserves away from the center before Amiens, the Germans relying on the fact that they hold the center line and therefore can move forces from front to front within the great salient they have created more quickly than the Allies can move them. If the French are compelled to make disposition to the south to check the Pinon Rheims front it was suggested the Germans might rush back forces for a new assault on the Amiens front, hoping to break through before allied reserves could be returned to the extreme of the lines.

Launch New Attack. London, May 27.—A German attack developed this morning against the British between Rheims, the Lys and the Somme. It was preceded by heavy bombardment.

Wide Front. By their attack of today the Germans have extended their active battle front as far east as Rheims, taking in a new sector which has been quiet since last fall. The thrust between Loos and Vornelle is along the northern edge of the Flanders salient on a sector measuring about eight miles, where the Germans met with one of the bloodiest defeats of the war when their drive for the channel ports was defeated last month. The attack between Soissons and Rheims is the disinctive feature of the new German operation. This battle is being fought along the sector which is usually referred to as the Alsne front.

With the British army in France, May 27.—The latest reports show the Germans have made small progress in places. The attacks of the Germans on the sector northwest of Amiens appear to be directed against ground captured by the French on May 20th.

Belgian Resist Attack. Belgian troops have recorded fresh victories over the Germans. On Sunday night they repulsed Teuton attacks and big raids on three sectors of their front.

Paris, May 27.—Over the front between the Forest of Pinon and Rheims the Germans launched an attack this morning, the war office announced. The French and British troops are resisting with their habitual valiance.

MAIN FIELD NEGLECTED.—The main field of German attack in the Somme region in the direction of Amiens has been neglected by the Germans in this new thrust. The possibility exists that the fighting will be extended to this area as the battle develops. The southern blow which covers a front of some forty miles and apparently is by far the more important, has come at a point which had not been considered the most probable field for the renewal of the German attempt.

LARGE FORCES MASSED.—The fact that both British and French troops are found holding this front gives indications that General Foch, the allied commander in chief, has large forces massed there.

It was indeed on this front between the tip of the Montdidier salient and Rheims that the enemy made the most dangerous exposure and there he must have felt himself most vulnerable to counter blow if this attack here is neither a demonstration in order to cover the main effort elsewhere or a veritable drive at Paris. The possibility remains it was launched with the intention of driving the allies from their advanced positions along the Oise and the Ailette, forestalling a flanking counter effort by Foch's reserve armies.

BATTLE IN FLANDERS.—The stroke in Flanders, while far less magnificently conceived than the one in the south, is aimed at a point which the Germans must take before they can hope to carry their April advance further toward the coast.

Behind the Loos Vornelle lies a hill which constitutes the backbone of the Franco-British position. Only the outlying peaks of which the Germans captured when they took Mont Kemmel last month.

POSITIONS ARE STRONG.—Scherpenberg, Mont Rouge, Mont Descats and other eminences are yet in the hands of the French. The German positions under attack are notably strong.

This is particularly true of the Southern line guarded by the river Oise and Ailette, the Chemin-des-Bois ridge which the German Crown Prince spent many weeks last summer trying to take. Not only did the fall, but was forced to further back last fall when General Petain launched a decisive blow in the Pinon region drove in for a depth of two miles a day and compelled the Germans to fall back to their position behind the Ailette, where they have since remained.

HILL REGION STRONG.—In the north the French recently have strengthened their hold on the hill region by pushing forward in the Loos sector in local thrusts and capturing important high ground.

GERMANS ACTIVE.—Weather conditions have improved somewhat and British airmen have again taken up their work of harassing the British. They have destroyed eight machines of the enemy. On the Aul sector American aviators have gained and German machines could not be found on that front. In minor fighting in the past four weeks the Anglo-French troops southwest of Ypres have gained some valuable, although small, but of greater importance, the renewal of the German offensive and to harass more successfully German attempts to reconstitute their units.

NO CHANGE.—There has been no change on the American sector.

BOOST RATES TO INCREASE MENS WAGES

MC ADON ORDERS RAILROAD FARES RAISED TO 3 CENTS PER MILE AND FREIGHT RATES INCREASED 25 PER CENT

WORKERS WILL BENEFIT $300,000,000 A Year Will Be Added To The Pay Envelopes Of Nearly Two Million Rail Workers—Effective Next Saturday

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Madison, May 27.—Upward of thirty-five millions increase in freight and passenger rates in Wisconsin has been authorized by an order from Director General McAdoo in the state of Wisconsin, according to orders received by Wisconsin Railway commission today. This estimate is based on the advance applied to 1917 earnings. If this order goes into effect the Wisconsin railroad commission will sit with folded hands. It will have little or nothing to do as far as railroad business is concerned.

The passenger rate fare goes into effect June 10. The Wisconsin 2c fare is nullified by the order.

The 25 per cent increase in freight rates becomes effective June 25th. The effect on Wisconsin business will be marked, as many of the special and interstate freight rates in Wisconsin have been wiped out.

So stunned are they by the sweeping order that the members of the railroad commission today refused to make any comment.

McAdoo Explains. Washington, May 27.—In announcing that the rate increases are required by public interests, McAdoo referred to the labor under an order published today, that the increase in the cost and production of the coal, which he estimated that ordered 60,000,000 more than last year, and that the high cost of all other material, would be between 60,000,000 and 80,000,000 greater than last year.

It is hoped that all citizens effected directly or indirectly, to the unavoidable war measures should accept them in the same sacrifice spirit and the personal losses show that the nation is patriotically paying for liberty.

He called attention to the fact that there is no other way to prevent private losses, so as to prevent any unnecessary burden on the public in general, for the benefit of the people of the United States, and in part for the benefit of the private railway owners.

"To meet wage increases," was announced, and that the cost of coal that railway freight be raised 25 percent, and fares increased to 3 cents a mile. It is estimated that they will bring between $3,000,000 and $4,000,000 revenue to the railway next year. The new freight charges will cover the cost, and the commodity rate will become effective June 25th, and June 10th, under authority of railway act, and under President Wilson.

Travelers in parlor cars are to pay three cents a mile in addition to Pullman fare.

Commutation and other suburban rates are increased ten per cent on interurban lines not effective. Privileges such as free side trips are abolished.

Both freight and passenger rates on rivers and railroads are to be raised with the general increase. Exports and imports from ports will apply to the same.

A number of increases are ordered for coal, coke, lumber, ore, grain, cotton, live stock, sugar, bullion and other commodities.

Rate regulations between various localities are to be preserved. All rates are subject to the Interstate Commerce commission, but the President holds final authority.

May Make Reductions. To the extent that savings can be effected and to the extent that reduced prices for the things the railroads carry can be realized, it will be the purpose of the director general to make from time to time appropriate reduction.

The provision that interstate rates shall be abolished wherever substitute interstate rates between the same points exist and that all shall be raised to a standard national level developed a controversial power of the federal railroad administration and the state railway and public utilities commission which heretofore have claimed exclusive jurisdiction over interstate rate state commission are permitted no review under the railroad act.

Such loss of submarines is added, must be reconciled with.

SELECTS DEPART FOR ARMY TRAINING CAMP

THIRTY-FOUR MEN FROM THIS DISTRICT LEFT AT TEN FORTY-FIVE THIS MORNING FOR CAMP GRANT.

LARGE CROWD AT DEPOT

Are Escorted to the Station by Detachment from Company G and by Bower City Band.

With all the pomp and patriotism that should accompany a contingent of selectees departing to do their share toward winning a victory for the United States in this conflict, thirty-four young men from this district left this morning on the C. M. & St. F. railroad at ten forty-five o'clock for Camp Grant, where they will undergo a few months of intensive training preparatory to departing for duty "over there." It was altogether an impressive sight with the young men marching to the depot headed by the Bower City band and with a detachment of Company G, Wisconsin State Guard, acting as an escort.

The start was made from the office of the local board at the post office at ten-fifteen and the line of march took the men up Milwaukee street to the Academy street and thence to the special car which was located just across from the Northwestern station. In order to avoid any confusion the men were immediately allowed to board the car and bid their fond farewells to their parents, sisters, brothers, friends and sweethearts from the windows. Friends who had been given the privilege of giving their strength and brains to the national army, which will end forever Kaiserism on this earth.

All in all, the Janesville contingent bound for Camp Grant, there were special cars with contingents from other district boards. At Beloit a group of selectees from that district boarded the train, which arrived at Camp Grant at one o'clock.

One of the happiest groups of young men was one of the happiest groups which have left Janesville. They seemed to realize that they were the favored ones who had been given the privilege of giving their strength and brains to the national army, which will end forever Kaiserism on this earth.

Edgerton. Edgerton, Wis.—The men reported at the office of the board at nine-thirty o'clock this morning and the roll called, all answering present. There was only one change from the list published in the Saturday afternoon's issue, that being the withdrawal of Max Phillips of Evansville, and the substitution of Edward Wright of Milton Junction.

Long Range Attack On Paris Is Again Begun By Germans

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Paris, May 27.—After a long interval the Germans again attacked Paris. The resumption of the bombardment was an unwelcome surprise to the Parisians who had not heard the sound of the explosion shell from the German big "Bertha" since May 1. The first shell was followed with fairly regular intervals much as on the occasion of previous bombardment making it seem probable more than one gun was in action.

WISCONSIN RESPONDS TO CALL FOR DOCTORS

Milwaukee, Wis., May 27.—As another evidence of the genuine and substantial loyalty of Wisconsin, the present campaign for additional medical officers for the military service is serving to call attention to the marvelous record already established by the physicians of this state in responding to the call of the government for army surgeons. Wisconsin has made a splendid showing. At the present time 446 physicians from this state are in actual service and nearly 100 more are waiting orders to report for service. This represents practically one-fifth of all the physicians in the state. In many of the states there isn't a physician left at home.

Only one other state of the twenty-one having 2,500 or more physicians can show an equally good record and that is Pennsylvania. But Pennsylvania is one of the most important medical college centers in the country and therefore has a much larger proportion of young and recently graduated doctors than has Wisconsin. It is a noteworthy fact that the Wisconsin contingent in the medical corps of the army is made up mainly of men who have done their military service in the service at great personal sacrifice and who had no other incentive for responding to the nation's call than their patriotism.

These facts were given full consideration by the surgeon general in his last call for men. He has never had more than the top 100 splendidly and has more than made its quota in the past. It is only being asked for 100 of the 7,000 men needed by army medicine.

The enlistment of so many of the best medical men in the state has made serious inroads in the medical profession in the state. The president of the American Medical Association, which was previous to the war, show 2,500 physicians in the state licensed and resident here. This high number of physicians in the state who are not in practice and those who have retired through advanced age or ill health. It is probable that the high number of physicians in the state practice in the state one year ago was about 2,500.

It is estimated by Lieut. Rock Slevester, M. D., secretary of the Wisconsin state committee medical section, Council of National Defense, that not more than one-half of this 2,500, are within the age limit and physically qualified for military duty. The raising of an additional 100 men by July therefore means that over one-half of the state's available men will be in service. It is estimated that the war will last for three years longer. It will take every physically fit physician in the state under 55 years of age.

The inroads which war has already made in the profession make it especially imperative that we should organize our forces and that the principles of selective service should be applied in our future recruiting for the medical reserve corps. declared Lieut. Slevester. "It is for this purpose that we are making a complete survey of the state. Reports coming to us from all districts show that everyone is now working and has been for months to his capacity. This is true even in the larger towns, which we have always supposed were short of physicians. The raising of the shortage is being exceptionally felt in the smaller communities and there are any number of villages in the state which have always been supplied with physicians that must now secure medical aid from neighboring towns.

"I am confident, however, that Wisconsin men will meet every demand that the government makes upon them. I am convinced, also, that the public meeting which will be held in Milwaukee Monday evening when Major Henry D. Jump will speak on the work of the medical service in the war, will be one of the most important and significant meetings that has been held in the state in connection with war work."

One Louisville plant had 50,000 barrels when prices began soaring. If the owners have retained all they will realize a profit of about $5,525,000. Another distiller is reported to have 50,000 barrels which at present price would yield him $2,875,000. Still another, it is said, had 25,000 barrels, now worth $2,537,500. Five others are reported to have holdings which would net them $2,500,000 each or a total profit of $11,000,000. Many a dealer who has cleared up 100 to 200 barrels have cleared up from $10,000 to $20,000 each. The indicated holdings of one distiller of some 300,000 gallons of whiskey of forty-five gallons each, or 14,000,000 gallons, on which it is currently reported they have realized $35,250,000. Many are holding their stock for even higher prices.

NEW WARTAX LAW NEEDED SAYS WILSON

APPEARS BEFORE JOINT SESSION OF CONGRESS AND TAKES CHARGE OF LEGISLATION TANGLE.

GREETED WITH CHEERS

Will Remain in Session Until Steps Are Taken to Meet Growing Financial Needs of Army and Navy.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Washington, May 27.—President Wilson personally took charge of the war tax legislation tangle today and appearing unexpectedly before a joint session of congress declared it was necessary to proceed immediately with new war tax laws.

Must Be Passed. Just as the German cannons are telling of the opening of a new drive President Wilson appeared before congress and stated that it was necessary to meet the growing financial needs of the war and prepare the country for the war. At the conclusion of the address he laid his manuscript on the table and declared he would leave.

"May I add this word?" he said. Just as I was leaving the White House the new drive was started. I was told that you realize how that solemnized me coming to you. I have admired the work of this session and the way the two houses have co-operated have been a great aid. It is not in any way of duty, but only to remind you of the coming cause that I have come to you today.

Greeted With Cheers. The president was greeted with cheers when he intimated that new revenue would be drawn from incomes, excess profits and luxuries. The galleries arose and cheered loudly.

His hearers landed his declaration that profiteering should be reached by taxation and that the country is ready for any necessary sacrifice.

Immediate Action. Plans which might have delayed the work which enjoyed an agreement have fallen through. The president stated that there was no way to meet the bill but for congress to go ahead at once. He called upon the senators to abolish politics at the present time. He stated, "I am not in any way to wait until then to see what the taxes would be. His address was very brief. He gave a distinct intimation against any treasury sacrifice.

Tragedy Co-operation. The president concluded by urging the members to do their work ungrudgingly and to proceed with the proposed legislation unless the bill was accepted.

WAR AND WHISKEY HAVE PRODUCED WEALTHY MEN

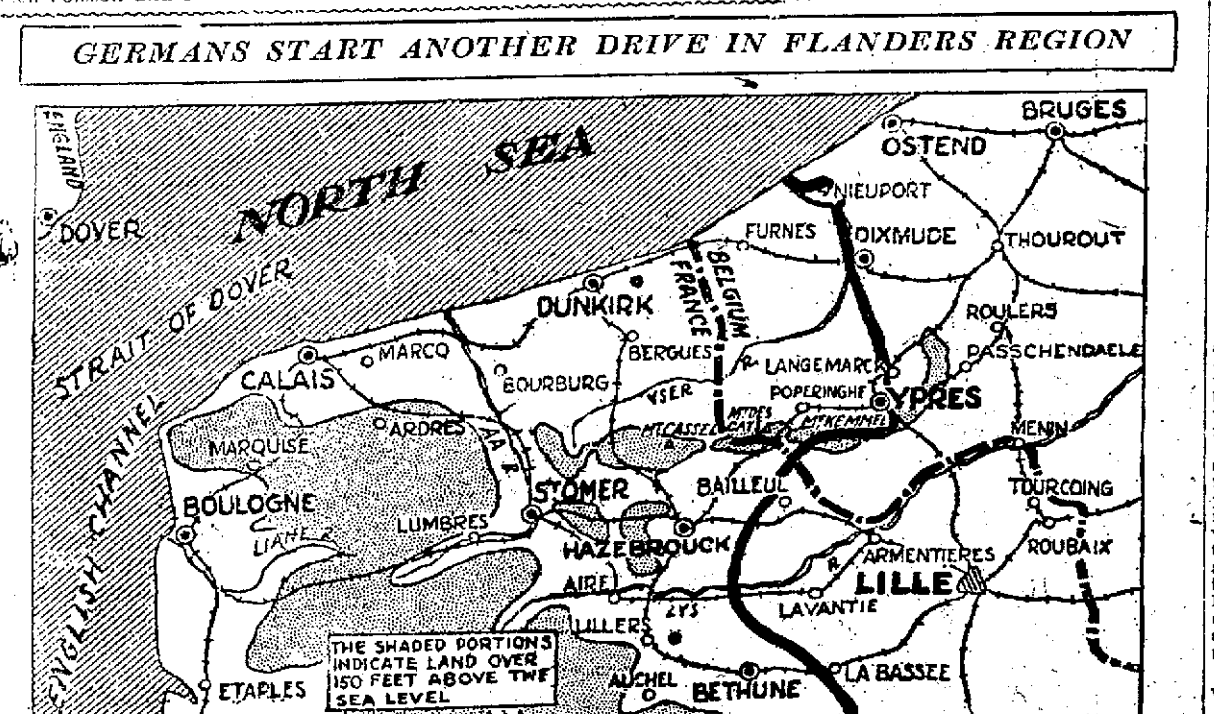

Louisville, Ky., May 27.—War and Kentucky whiskey have produced a number of millionaires. The story of its accumulation forms an interesting story at the present day history.

Eight months ago distillers were gloomy over the prospect of ruin as the result of the prohibition movement. Today, through whiskey price advances, practically all are looking well to do, or have been thrust into the millionaire class. About twenty men in Louisville alone are said to have become wealthy as a result of an advance of approximately $250 per gallon in whiskey prices since Sept. 1 last year.

One man, long identified with the whiskey business, said the whiskey owners have made money so fast that they hardly know what to do with it. One of them, he said, has made arrangements to provide retirement for his older employees.

Retailers say the consumer must settle the bill and that over-the-bar customers are not only paying more in cash in many cities, but are getting less for their money.

One Louisville plant had 50,000 barrels when prices began soaring. If the owners have retained all they will realize a profit of about $5,525,000. Another distiller is reported to have 50,000 barrels which at present price would yield him $2,875,000. Still another, it is said, had 25,000 barrels, now worth $2,537,500. Five others are reported to have holdings which would net them $2,500,000 each or a total profit of $11,000,000. Many a dealer who has cleared up 100 to 200 barrels have cleared up from $10,000 to $20,000 each. The indicated holdings of one distiller of some 300,000 gallons of whiskey of forty-five gallons each, or 14,000,000 gallons, on which it is currently reported they have realized $35,250,000. Many are holding their stock for even higher prices.

After more than a fortnight of comparative inactivity, the Flanders battle line is again flaming into action. The Germans are expected to make another tremendous effort to capture Ypres. One of the chief German objectives in this sector is Poperinghe, a Belgian town is five miles west of Ypres and six miles north-west of Loos, on the only direct railway connecting Ypres with Dunkirk and the channel ports. If the German advance of last month had reached Poperinghe quickly the British army about Ypres would have been practically surrounded and probably forced to surrender.

FORE.

Rock county said farewell today to another contingent of soldiers called by the selective draft, and also to a goodly number of young boys, too young for military service in the national army, but most acceptable to the navy as recruits. This is the last of the May draft. This June, July, August and September will witness further departures of future soldiers and sailors to make up the great army and navy that are training to fight for a world democracy.

These partings are sad, but necessary, and these left behind realize more each day what the war means. Right here at home, before the last of the summer draft contingents leave there will be few homes in Rock county that can not display service flags for some branch of the service. These flags hang beside the "Red Cross" emblem the "Your Share is Fair" and announce to those who pass the loyalty of the household.

Yet these flags tell a different story. They show that there in this home or that, there is a vacant chair while away at some training camp, on the high seas, perhaps "somewhere in France," a son, a husband or a father is doing his share for the flag of freedom and the world at large. These young stars represent the great democracy of the United States and the part that nation plays in the war of wars. Yet these departures should not be made scenes of sorrow. Let our selective draft men, our volunteers, leave us with a blast of trumpets and a farewell they will carry with them during their training days and even later. The National Service Welfare Association plans to make these outgoing stars a thing of joy, and all those who join this organization to assure its success. There are many little details to attend to and the association looks after them and instead of a few men contributing to the needed funds, all are given an opportunity to do their share by uniting their efforts with those of the other members.

HANDLING OF EXPLOSIVES.

The friends of the Kaiser in this country will get some comfort out of the accident at the explosives plant at Oakdale, Wis., where some sixty or more people lost their lives. There is at least the consolation that if any dirty skunk of a spy did it, he is where he won't do it again.

The handling of explosives has always been attended with needless accidents even in time of peace. Certain powder factories have had the habit of blowing up regularly. Such materials can be handled with safety, provided care is shown. But reckless or ignorant workers refuse to take precautions. The most deadly materials are carried around in highly congested streets, and thrown around at railroad stations as if they were potatoes.

The matter is vital to our war work, because so much depends on the ability to turn out a great supply of these deadly materials. The more "Tintoretto" we can send over to blast the Huns out of their burrows, the fewer of our boys we shall have to sacrifice. And to get a big supply of these materials, we must be able to handle them with a fair condition of safety and few accidents.

The wages paid in this trade are high, and people who are willing to take the risk find themselves able to make substantial savings. Considering the enormous amount of explosives that have been turned out the past year, the proportion of accidents is small. The spies among us will try to exaggerate it.

The man who handles high explosives at a time like this is doing good patriotic work. These forces in these factories should be carefully picked to exclude those who can't speak English and those of doubtful loyalty. They should be made to feel that they are performing a service of special value, for which they have the gratitude of the whole country.

WORLD'S NEWS.

Each afternoon the news of the world, the last gossip as to the war and to local happenings, is printed in the Gazette. The world's news is obtained over the wires of the Associated Press, the wonderful news organization that has its representatives on every battle front, in every city of prominence in the world, even within the inner circle of the Central Powers. Its news is accurate and reliable.

As an adjunct to this service the Gazette has the International News service daily, both state and national, the call on the United Press, another nation-wide news gathering organization, and from special correspondents in local communities. Your evening paper contains the world's news in concrete form, the same news that you will find twelve hours later in other papers the next morning.

This world's news is intensely interesting these days and happenings occur so quickly that to miss one day's issue means a lost thread of a dropped stitch in the affairs of life.

Some of these people who denounce the German spies are passing around the story, whose origin anyone should be able to guess, that the health of the American people will be injured by eating so much corn.

This is not original, but it is worth repeating: Why is the Slacker like a squash pie? Because he is soft and yellow, and hasn't the crust to go over the top!

From the senatorial inquiry of a certain prominent member one would almost believe that even the worst "lion enemy" we have was a loyal citizen.

Rock county is going to be well represented on sea, on land and in the air when the American hosts really begin their advance on Berlin.

Realizing the difficulty created by the shortage of labor, the dogs of the family help out by excavating the garden after it is thoroughly planted.

Feeling that the American people should have a better realistic development, the motorists keep the pedestrians constantly jumping.

A number of politicians have decided that the new ordinance plant is going to be a failure, as it isn't located in their districts.

Germany is very anxious for peace while she drills her 180,000,000 Russian slaves to jump on us on twenty-four hours' notice.

Anyway the merchants who don't advertise don't have to pay any large bill for help to care for their volume of business.

It is all right to pray for peace at the Memorial day exercises, provided you pray with even more emphasis for justice.

After planting, it is wise to wait at least forty-eight hours before digging up the seeds to see if they are sprouting.

The Germans deny that they break their treaties right off as they always abide by them for a day or two.

Well, the republicans of the first congressional district met at Elkhorn?

ON THE SPUR of the MOMENT

ROY K. MOULTON

A LITTLE SLICE OF LIFE.

You see, it wasn't really our fault at all. But the war garden has gone to the chickens.

Our kind landlord allowed us to use a piece of ground 50 by 22 feet if we would put it under cultivation. Which we did at once, with avidity. Then we planted all the seeds and everything.

And put some little sticks in the ground. And put the seed envelopes on the sticks. To show just where everything was planted.

One can't remember those things, you know. That night there was a cute little burglar.

Right off the wet part of the Atlantic And all the little envelopes blew away. And now we can't tell where the beans are.

Or the succotash, or anything. And every sort of seed requires a different sort of cultivation. We might wait till the things come.

But we wouldn't know even then. So it looks like another season of Brisk trade at the corner green grocer's.

HIS PRIDE.

"I haven't much in the way of wealth," he said with a smile to me. "But I never have left a dozen men to drown in a wintry sea. There are things I want that I can't not buy, but I'm satisfied, after all."

For I never have bandaged a woman's eyes and shot her against a wall.

"The papers each morning leave out my name, there is nothing in all I do."

That editors look on as real live news or worthy a line or two. But I'm quite contented the way things are; to my fate I am reconciled.

For I never have laugh in a golden court while women were being defiled.

"It isn't much that I've had on earth, but all that I've had I've earned. And I never have heard old people shriek in grief as their homes I burned."

The only power that I own, down here is a vote on election day. But that's better far than the kind of might that will slaughter a babe at play.

"I'd rather be me, in my humble shack, with the little that's mine to own. Than the blood-stained creature of a Prussian throne."

For I never have crimsoned the ground with blood, nor ordered a wife to die.

Nor left men there in the wintry sea, to get what I couldn't buy."

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

To the Editor:

Dear Sir: "Voices of the People," appearing at this time draw more attention in your paper than perhaps any other single department, especially by Janesville residents and those of surrounding country.

"Thursday's paper should have been called the 'Voice of the Multitude.' I have before me the accusations of Mrs. Meyers, A. Reader, and 'The Other Victor.' All of these statements made by the above fairly gush with freedom, patriotism, love of flag, love of country and pleas for a Christian community."

To my knowledge I have never seen or heard of Mr. Heller until the past occurrences, which made him a very prominent figure.

Firstly, one of the afore-mentioned states that they are loyal to the core. Now I sincerely hope that shame would come in quantities to any who would dare to doubt that statement.

We all love our country, ever one of us; we love our flag and our country; we all detest that "Tomb of Hell" across the Rhine. Aye, and verily we do.

Will say right now, it costs nothing to love it, it costs nothing to hang our flag to the view of our neighbors; it costs nothing to swell our chests and say, 'I'm loyal.' All of these things, but it does cost to give from one up to four sons to the service, and if you or I give that we have given the supreme gift of all.

I then ask you, does it not make you see "red" when a man with no immediate kin walking side by side with that old gentleman with the scythe. Does it not make you act rather than consult the law of our state? Who at such a time wishes to sit down and say, how will this affect the people? What will this affect?

What will my standing be if this is brought against me? The man who would ask those questions at a time when a man has been given chance after chance to be a man to keep the self-respect of his community to give to the service of his country with a soldier's pride, to provide a clean bed and pure food for some boy—maybe his neighbor—and looked in and was picked up by the Red Cross or some other similar institution. That man, I will say again, is "Dead from his neck up." As you, Mr. Editor, said the government asks us to support the Y. M. C. A., Red Cross, and K. of C., and all beneficial institutions, still I can't believe that they are compulsory creditors. These things are left to courtesy, to nation as well as friend. Everyone knows the purpose of the County Fund. Every one before it is launched. Everyone knows the purpose of the Strong Arm Squad. Why something agreed to two weeks ago. Many people make me think of a balky mule. The mule will bray all day long, but will not work. So with some people. Here's a slogan for you: "If you won't or can't give, don't bray."

I notice our friend who derives his income from the farm, bewails the low price for milk. Let him look at the price of the milk. Did President Wilson declare war that we would all make a fortune out of it? Are the boys "over there" making money and saving it? Are they picking the easy spots on the live?

Mr. Heller bought $2,500.00 U. S. bonds. Say, is it any greater for John D. Rockefeller to buy a cool million, than it is for your neighbor to buy one on the installment plan.

Some plead with a Christian community. Our austere friend, the Emperor of Germany, tells us quite frequently that God and himself are "partners" on everything.

Another one says: Speaker sacrifices prestige by statement to the effect that a steam roller should be used to those who refused the county fund. I say no! Don't use the roller, take a common ordinary pocket knife out-top them, and then watch the "gas" float and the foundation waste away.

All persons have the undisputed right to administer treatment to those who are delinquent in the pursuit of this war being brought to a successful termination by the power of the boys in Brown, supplied and kept up by the finest land on God's over seas and by the little individual helps from such as this county fund.

Now we will say adieu to Mr. Heller, Mrs. Meyers, A. Reader and A. Victor, hoping you will take this in the spirit given.

Merely the viewpoint of one who has given two units of the supreme gift, and am ready with three more. Just Me.

PENSION INCREASES GRANTED IN ENGLAND

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] London, May 27.—Pension increases just announced benefit chiefly widows and children.

Pensions to widows are raised from one-half to two-thirds of the pension that the husband might have been paid had he lived and remained capable of earning his living. If he was earning fifty shillings a week before the war the widow can now claim thirty-three shillings, four pence a week.

Children are provided for as follows: First child, six shillings eight pence; second child, five shillings; each other child, four shillings; two pence; illegitimate child, six shillings eight pence.

Parents are now entitled to a pension if they are incapable of self-support, owing to age or infirmity and are in need.

Soldiers discharged as medically unfit are to receive twenty-seven shiland each man has full power in his department. The magnitude of Stettinius' new job is enough to awe several men. The program mapped out for him includes the expenditure of several billions more than have been set aside for ship building.

Stettinius is expected to provide General Pershing and his fighters in France with fighting material, guns, ammunition, shells and other death-dealing necessities of modern war.

The gigantic program was outlined and handed to Stettinius as was the shipping problem to Schwab and the aviation situation to Ryan, with the injunction: "Here it is, now go to it."

In 1911 Stettinius' match company waived its claim to exclusive rights for a substitute for phosphorus in making parlor matches. Phosphorus poisoned factory employees. The substitute is harmless material.

January 27 last, as surveyor general of supplies in the war department, he became the head of several agencies. As war purchasing agent he became an advisor to the army chief of staff.

He was a member of the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co., when drafted by President Wilson to buy army supplies. He was selected when Senator Chamberlain was seeking to create the position of director of munitions.

Stettinius had been handling the army and supply contracts for the British government in America. He was described as "the ablest business organizer in the rank of the allies or the enemy."

When the war began he was president of the Diamond Match Co. and director in other big industrial concerns.

Refuse Wage Increases. Appleton, Wis.—Only two contractors have agreed to grant the demand of the striking carpenters for an eight hour day at fifty-five cents an hour. Work has been tied up for a week, the men and the Master Builders' association being apparently unable to agree. Secretary of Labor Wilson may be asked to intervene.
